Our Community

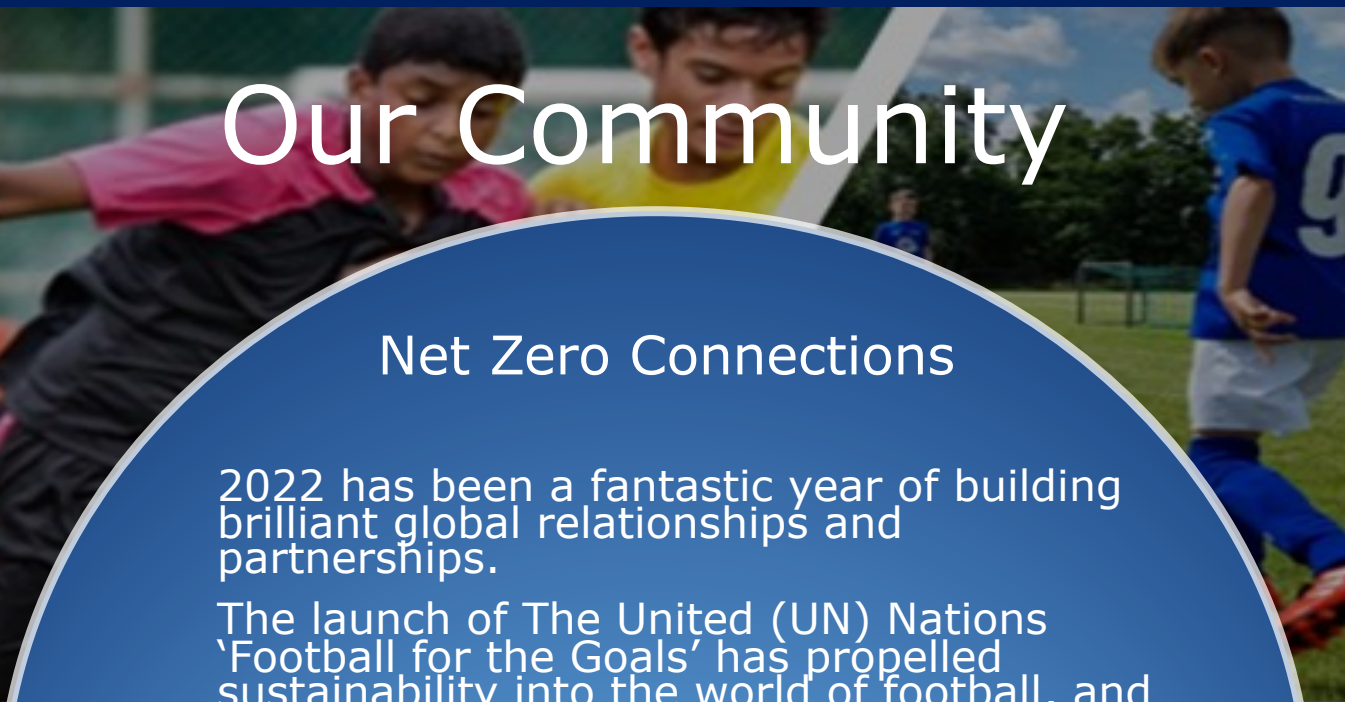

Net Zero Connections

2022 has been a fantastic year of building brilliant global relationships and partnerships.

The launch of The United (UN) Nations 'Football for the Goals' has propelled sustainability into the world of football, and we strive to be the leaders advancing the changes we want to see in our communities.

Through our shared love of sport and our passion to embed sustainable practice into our organizations, a uniquely diverse community has been formed and is optimistic for its future development.

Their ambitions are vast but they find community in their one shared goal – Net Zero.

What is Football For The Goals?

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) cover all factions of society and require global participation to see through substantial change over the Decade of Action (2020-2030). This requires all countries to be involved in making changes and championing sustainable practices in society.

In its nature, the SDG movement aims to unite people from all backgrounds and sports are one of the most globally unifying communities we have. Through a love of sport, many have been exposed to shared goals and global challenges that by their favourite teams, players, organisations etc illustrating how powerful sports can be in spreading awareness alongside enjoyment.

With this same idea in mind, Football for the Goals (2022) was launched by the United Nations to combine the voice of the UN with that of the football community in efforts to expand the reach of the SDGs.

Background

The clubs and organisations that have formed this growing community span across 5 countries and each engage with sustainable practice in different ways. Their paths are united as they have each worked to better their communities and embed SDG ethos into the fabrication of their organisations.

In recent years, their ambitions have aligned to strive to reduce their carbon footprints, as the climate emergency continues to be a threat to us all. Through the United Nations 'Football for the Goals' the clubs have found community and began working with partners such as De Montfort University to begin the work to decarbonize their clubs and become Net Zero. Others are further along in their journey are excited to help others follow in their footsteps.

So – Let's see what they have been up to and what they plan to work on in 2023

Leicester Nirvana FC

“Creating a dream for net zero and bridging the gap between inequalities and sustainability.”

Leicester Nirvana started its journey in the 80's and has a strong Black and South Asian holding, and as you can imagine, had its fair share of discrimination. With these external challenges, the club has prioritised tackling these issue alongside nurturing young talent and providing a safe space for 1,000 boys , girls and adults.

This steady and consistent work has evolved over the years and inspired the club to broaden their ambitions – they aim to work alongside De Montfort University to become the first Net Zero amateur football club in the UK.

SCORED:

- Tackling discrimination in their community
- Opening a development club to provide more opportunities to young players
- Creating global connections to work on SDGs
- Tackling crime and violence in the community through advocacy

2023 GOALS:

- Teach carbon literacy in Partnership with DMU
- Install infrastructure to promote green ambitions i.e . Growing walls, water fountains, solar panels
- Plant more trees on and around the grounds

Leicester City FC

"Getting our staff and participants down; it creates a real community sense of helping each other and helping the environment."

Leicester City FC a Premier League football club who have a long history of championing the sustainability and community spirit in their City. Over the years the club has strengthened policies and focus to ensure sustainability is being championed both within and outside their walls.
